State Vehicular Recreation Areas (SVRAs)

State Vehicular Recreation Areas (SVRAs) are established to provide the fullest public use for off-highway vehicle (OHV) recreation while providing environmental programs to protect, preserve, and sustain lands for future generations. From the coast to the desert, the nine SVRAs have varied terrain and climates that provide recreational opportunities to visitors of all skill levels and vehicle types. In most locations, SVRAs have trails, tracks, and other OHV recreation opportunities; camping, including group campsites; interpretive and educational programs; and, resource management programs designed to sustain OHV opportunities and protect and enhance natural and cultural resources. Many SVRAs also offer non-motorized recreation such as mountain biking, hiking, camping, bird watching, and other activities. ❖

Engaging Youth through OHV Recreation

In recent years, many authors and researchers have noted increases in childhood obesity as young people choose to engage in indoor activities such as electronic gaming and surfing the internet, rather than more active outdoor pursuits. The focus on indoor pursuits has also led to a lack of connection with nature. Through the popularity of OHV recreation, young people can be drawn into outdoor activities that expose them to new experiences, and where they can be taught how to appreciate, understand, and protect our state's natural resources.

The OHMVR Program takes advantage of the opportunity presented by the presence of large numbers of young people and non-traditional user groups in OHV recreation areas by providing educational programs that teach appreciation of nature and the outdoors. ❖
